

We select unique silica sand from local Donghai area and melt the silica sand through high temperature electric fusion into large ingot. The fused silica ingot is saw cut and then ground and polished to make into different desired shapes of products such as tube, plate, ring, crucible, container, etc. These products features exceptionally good thermal shock resistance and electricity resistance and have lowest thermal expansion. They are widely used in high temperature industry, chemical, electronics, etc.

